Software Sample is a Software provider (ISV) platform, which enables users to download, evaluate and install trial and commercial software. Software Sample will not provide email or email marketing list services.It's early, but Republicans seem to be lining up in support of Donald Trump's third bid for the presidency. A new CNN/ORC poll suggests that 69% of the GOP primary electorate in Iowa says they will support the billionaire celebrity as the party's nominee, even as 11% say they will support former Florida Gov. Jeb Bush and 9% will support Texas Sen. Ted Cruz. Cruz represents the young, tea party-oriented section of the party. Bush is the establishment candidate, and Trump is the outsider. The poll was conducted in Iowa, where Trump's lead is largest, and it suggests he is winning support with voters. The survey found that Trump leads the field of candidates at 24%, and it has the support of 56% of GOP primary voters. The second-place candidate, Bush, appears to be fading. He is supported by 14% of voters, while the poll suggests that 9% will support Cruz and 6% will back retired neurosurgeon Ben Carson, a favorite of evangelical Christians. Former Arkansas Gov. Mike Huckabee is in third place, at 9%, while Ohio Gov. John Kasich is at 5% and Kentucky Sen. Rand Paul is at 3%. The poll was conducted after Trump's efforts to pressure and shame Cruz into dropping out of the race. Trump even threatened to "spill the beans" about what Cruz has done and
